

Jean-Charles Vollery takes over as Chief Executive Officer of SYSTRA Group

Paris, 29 October 2024 - Jean-Charles Vollery has been appointed Chief Executive Officer of SYSTRA Group with effect from 25 October 2024. A member of the Executive Board since 2019, he was previously Chief Operating Officer. The new Executive Board will comprise Jean-Charles Vollery and Arnaud Jeudy, Chief Finance and Administration Officer.

Following the acquisition of a 58% stake in SYSTRA by Latour Capital and Fimalac, alongside the historical shareholders SNCF Group and RATP Group, Jean-Charles Vollery succeeds Pierre Verzat as Chief Executive Officer.

Jean-Charles Vollery has a degree in Civil Engineering with a specialisation in bridges (HEI and CHEC). With almost 30 years' experience in international transport infrastructure, he has managed several major projects, including metros, conventional railway lines, high-speed lines and motorways.

He joined SYSTRA's Technical Department in 1996, working in the Civil Engineering and Structural Works division, where he managed projects in South Korea and China. In 2007, he was appointed Managing Director of SYSTRA in India. In 2012, he became Senior Vice President of SYSTRA in charge of the Asia Pacific region, based in Hong Kong.

In January 2016, Jean-Charles Vollery joined the Executive Committee of SYSTRA Group, before becoming the Group's Chief International & Development Officer and a member of the Executive Board in 2019. From July 2021 until now, Jean-Charles Vollery was Chief Operating Officer.

"I am very enthusiastic about the idea of continuing the Group's growth trajectory, while continuing to promote this brand for which I have a deep attachment. I am committed to putting the satisfaction of our clients and the well-being of our teams at the heart of our shared ambition."
