

SYSTRA signals significant growth with Leeds office move

Global sustainable infrastructure business SYSTRA expands its presence in Leeds in response to significant growth across all its services.

SYSTRA has relocated in Leeds, further bolstering its commitment to developing talent in the city and across the Yorkshire region.

Located in 114 Wellington Street, the new Leeds office provides a modern open-plan creative space for SYSTRA, which is one of Yorkshire's leading transport planning, engineering and infrastructure specialists. Members of the SYSTRA Signature Team based in the Leeds office are working on projects for local clients including West Yorkshire Combined Authority (WYCA), Leeds City Council, Kirklees Council, and national infrastructure organisations such as HS2, Network Rail, Rail Safety and Standards Board (RSSB), and National Highways.

SYSTRA experts are part of the delivery team for the Transpennine Route Upgrade (TRU East) electrification project, which will transform the rail passenger experience between Leeds and York by improving capacity and making journeys more reliable, safer and greener. SYSTRA's Leeds-based architectural team also lead the design for the newly opened Gatwick Airport station.

Nick Salt, CEO of SYSTRA, said: "We are delighted with our new space in Leeds. It is a bright modern space which complements our colleague's shining skills across our range of services. We look forward to growing the business through delivering sustainable infrastructure and creating places that thrive across Yorkshire."

Sebastien Dupont, Managing Director (Consultancy) at SYSTRA, added: "Our presence in Leeds goes back more than three decades through our growth and acquisitions, and it's wonderful to have a newly-created, modern office space to reflect our brand and our ambition to deliver first-class services.

"We are very much looking forward to growing our portfolio of work in Yorkshire and continuing to support our clients on complex sustainable infrastructure projects in the UK, Ireland and around the world."

SYSTRA's new Leeds office is located: Suite 3C West One, 3rd Floor, 114 Wellington Street, Leeds, LS1 1BA
